Part 5 MAY 2010

“Hat’s Off”: Methodism and Popular Protest in the West Riding of Yorkshire in the Chartist era: a case study of Benjamin Rushton (1785-1853) of Halifax’

This article explores Methodist influences derived from Wesleyanism, the Methodist New Connexion, the Primitive Methodists, the Primitive Methodist Revivalists and the Independent Methodists on the radical politics of Benjamin Rushton, a handloom weaver and Methodist preacher. It argues that his anti-clerical preference that no paid minister officiate at his funeral should not be interpreted as evidence of apostasy and challenges meta-narratives of secularisation which may have obscured the religious underpinning of Chartism, which may have owed more than has been hitherto allowed to the culture as well as the organisation of Methodism.

Keeping the Faith: Ireland's Primitive Methodism

Rev Robin P. Roddie. Belfast, Archivist, Wesley Historical Society in Ireland

For almost ninety years after John Wesley's death a branch of Methodism in Ireland perpetuated a form of Methodism modelled on Wesley's design for his Connexion. Following Disestablishment in Ireland and the failure of the original Methodist-Anglican 'conversations', the Primitive Wesleyan Methodists united with the Irish Wesleyans in 1878, but a remnant continued within Anglicanism into the twentieth century.
